

AMENDMENTS TO THE CLAIMS

Please replace the claims as previously submitted with the following claims:

1. (Currently Amended) A system for determining lodging options, the system comprising:

a database of a plurality of lodging options, wherein the database includes at least one experience designator for each lodging option, wherein the at least one experience designator represents a type of user experience associated with a particular lodging option based upon its setting; an experience input for receiving at least one desired experience designator; and means for generating and displaying a list of lodging options which include the at least one desired experience designator.

2. (Cancelled)
3. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 1, further comprising:

a lodging selection input for selecting a lodging option from the list of lodging options;

and

means for displaying additional information for a selected lodging option.
4. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 3, wherein the additional information is retrieved from the database.
5. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 3, wherein the additional information is retrieved from a storage location other than the database.
6. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 3, further comprising:

means for making a reservation at the selected lodging option.

7. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 1, wherein the database further includes at least one destination designator for each lodging option, each designator representing a geographic location of the lodging option; and

wherein the system further includes:

a destination input for receiving at least one desired destination designator; and means for generating and displaying a list of lodging options which include at the at least one desired destination designator.

8. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 1, wherein the database further includes at least on accommodation designator for each lodging option, each accommodation designator representing a type of facility of the lodging option; and

wherein the system further includes:

a accommodation input for receiving at least one desired accommodation designator; and

means for generating and displaying a list of lodging options which include the at least one desired accommodation designator.

9. (Previously presented) The system for determining lodging options according to claim 1, wherein the database further includes at least on special offering designator for each lodging option, each special offering designator representing a special offer available at the lodging option; and

wherein the system further includes:

a special offering input for receiving at least one desired special offering designator; and means for generating and displaying a list of lodging options which include the at least one desired special offering designator.

10. (Currently amended) A method for locating lodging options stored in a database, the method including the steps of:

inputting type of experience associated with a lodging option, wherein the type of experience user experience associated with a particular lodging option based upon its setting; and searching a database of lodging options for lodging options which include the inputted type of experience; and displaying a list of lodging options retrieved by the searching step.

11. (Previously presented) The method for locating lodging options according to claim 10, further comprising the steps of:

selecting a lodging option from the list of displayed list; and displaying additional information regarding the selected lodging option.

12. (Previously presented) The method for locating lodging options according to claim 11, further including the step of retrieving the additional information from a storage location other than the database.

13. (Previously presented) The method for locating lodging options according to claim 11, further including the step of retrieving the additional information from the database.

14. (Previously presented) The method for locating lodging options according to claim 11, further comprising the step of:

making a reservation for the selected lodging option.